their place. A larger number of the featers, admiss and children, had thronged to the House of Industry, where divine service was being observed with the consent of the Superintendent, Mr. Samuei E. Haliday. There were over 300 children and nearly 100 destinute soldiers, with other poor persons, present; and beside this attendance, there was another one of fashlomable ladies and gentlemen from up town.

The services were held more particularly for the henefit of the children, and several gentlemen were invited to address them by Mr. Haliday. That gentle man stated that the regular inmates of the House recited portions of the Scriptures, and were catechised in them daily to render their Enowledge more profesent. He asked them several questions from the Bible, which they readily replied to. The exercises were enlivened by the singing of the children, which was composed of some hymns they had committed to memory, and which they sing with fine effect. At the close of the exercises the children were marched to their means in the dining-rooms, and at the invitation of the Superintendent, the visitors repaired thither, and witnessed the filling of their 300 little months with good substantial food, highly pleased at the sight. After they had finished, the same sort of meals were previded for destitute men and women who are dependent on the Fire Points House of Industry for their living Thus the good example is set by this Institution of praying for the poor and feeding them at the same times.
